

CLUES Donor Privacy Policy

CLUES only collects personal contact information (such as names, addresses, email addresses and phone numbers) when donors or web users voluntarily submit their information to the organization through donations, newsletters and the web site. When the donor asks to remain anonymous, all information is held in a private database and not used for any marketing purposes. CLUES does not sell or exchange mailing lists or email addresses and, internally, only uses this contact information for organizational event invitations or for annual report or informational mailings. Any and all documents received from donors are locked in a specific file that is only accessible by the vice president and director of development.

Please contact CLUES at development@clues.or or (651)379-4200 in order to change any incorrect information regarding your donation or contact information.
